PLAINTIFF & PLUS'S OBJECTIONS TO DEFENDANT'S DESIGNATIONS AND SUMMARY OF THE DEPOSITION OF LAURENE McENENY AND COUNTER-DESIGNATIONS

Plaintiff, ePlus, Inc. ("ePlus"), through counsel, hereby submits the following general and specific objections to Defendant Lawson Software, Inc. ("Defendant's") Deposition

Designations and summary from the deposition of Laurene McEneny and offers the following counter-designations:

General Objections

1. Undue prejudice as to testimony concerning the P.O. Writer Version 10.0.

Defendant solicited testimony as to whether the P.O. Writer Version 10.0 software was in public use or on sale before the filing date of the patents-in-suit. The P.O. Writer system was a collection of separately licensed modules. Defendant's expert opines that several of these separately licensed modules must be licensed together to allegedly invalidate the patents-in-suit. The testimony gleaned from Defendant's counsel's questioning as to whether the P.O. Writer Version 10.0 system was in public use or on sale in general is irrelevant and unduly prejudicial since this testimony does not qualify whether any systems allegedly in use or on sale contained the necessary modules.

2. Seeks legal conclusion. Defendant repeatedly asked the witness whether the P.O. Writer system met certain limitations disclosed in the patents-in-suit (e.g. whether the P.O. Writer systems was an "electronic sourcing system"). The questioning improperly seeks expert testimony from a lay witness. Ms. McEneny testified that she is not an attorney, does not know what claims of the patents-in-suit are being asserted and has not studied the asserted claims.

Laurene McEneny (June 10, 2010) – Rebuttal Summary

Counsel for Defendant contacted Ms. McEneny and asked her to be a consultant in the litigation. (13:5-10). Ms. McEneny was a paid consultant in the SAP litigation and testified at trial. (108:3-16). Counsel for Defendant sent Ms. McEneny documents including her testimony from the SAP litigation. (9:21 – 10:21). Ms. McEneny consulted her prior testimony during the course of her deposition. (24:12-21).

The PO Writer product included many modules, all of which were optional and must be purchased separately. (26:13 – 27:7; 97:21 – 98:1). The PO Writer software including a purchasing module containing an item master record. (42:12-25). Ms. McEneny did not know whether the "Guided Tour" document was a draft document. (54:16 – 55:17; 77:10-15; 79:1-5; 79:8-12).

Ms. McEneny testified that in the PO Writer system, a user could not search user generated information contained in the item master record. (45:2-19; 91:2-4; 91:7-13). Items in the PO Writer item master are not tied to any specific source. (48:25-49:1; 49:3-6; 49:9-12; 49:22-50:7; 50:9-15; 50:17; 52:11-21). Users manually entered a supplier into a purchase order after they had selected an item. (99:19-100:10). The PO Writer software assigned a vendor to an item based on the order history of the item. (73:10-74:3; 103:6-104:19).

There is no catalog identifier in the vendor master. (53:17-19; 53:22-24). The Catalog ID in the item master is not associated with any specific vendor and is instead a way for a user to group items together. (101:25-102:3; 102:5-8). The PO Writer Version 10 software did not include the ability to cross reference items within the system. (89:19-90:2; 90:4-19). While the PO Writer product could check item availability in inventory, it was designed for and limited to checking the customer's own inventory. (36:23-37:10; 37:14-16; 37:25-38:6; 38:13-17).

American Tech's standard licensing agreement stated that it would "vigorously prosecute anyone who makes unauthorized copies of its software and users manual." (81:10 -82:20). American Tech also wrote in its manuals that users could not copy the manuals without the consent of American Tech. (92:13-22; 93:10 – 94:4). Ms. McEneny understood that users of the PO Writer product were under an obligation to keep information contained in the PO Writer manual confidential. (152:4-7; 152:9-15; 152:17-25).

So they would really have a couple of choices. The they would put in a quantity of the item they wanted, if they found it. If based on their search they didn't find the item they wanted, they could go back and they could do another search and look for the item. But in this example if they only wanted one item, they could continue on to create a requisition.  Q. So my question is specific to just this one example, where a user sees the results, they decide they want 3/8ths inch drill bits, and they enter into a quantity for that number.  A. Um-hum.  Q. Do the 3/8th inch drill bits then go directly to the requisition?  A. It goes to it's going to go on to the requisition, correct. And then if you go	6

A. They probably were just in the manila folder.  Q. These first pages, L 1012703 to 108, those were not part of the manual; is that correct?  A. They may be included in the manual somewhere, pasted in. But the actual manual would start at L 0127109.  Q. Is it your understanding that when these manuals were produced, they were in hard form and they were produced in files so things might have gotten in between them?  A. They were stored in manila folders, in a fireproof filing cabinet. And then the way they were actually produced at that period of	3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22	were developed over time. So that is most probably what it is.  Q. Okay. Do you remember if supplier performance was a module that you did not offer at the beginning when you were offering some of the other modules we've discussed?  A. The first module was purchasing.  And then receiving came after that. So this would have not been one of the first. Because you would have to have purchasing and receiving in order to create a supplier performance report. So it would have not probably been in the first few years. Those other two modules had to be developed first.  Q. Again, do you see where it says L 0127109, supplier performance version 10.0?  A. Yes.  Q. And then the next page, tenth edition, April 1993, software revision 10.0?  A. Um-hum.
